PIERCE NAMED TO STATE POST BY GUTHERY

Marion Man Made Chief of Animal Incustry Division by Secretary.

SALARY IS $3,600 A YEAR

George E. McCormick Replaced as Ohio Librarian by J. H. Newman Today

Marion county today was given a third major appointment in the new state organization when it was announced that Dr. George H. Pierce of 493 Summit street had been named state veterinarian. His official title is chief of the division of animal husbandry.

The appointment was announced from Columbus by I. S. Guthery of LaRue, state director of agriculture, one of the other two Marion county men to win major appointments. The third is Grover Snyder of Marion, head of the maintenance division in the department of highways.

Made Test Here

Dr. Pierce conducted the anti-bovine tuberculosis campaign which ended in the county last year. He made his residence here during the campaign, which lasted for several years, and has been living here since the campaign was concluded.

He succeeds Dr. C. McCandless of Salem, Republican. Dr. Pierce will receive a salary of $3,600 a year.

One of the major items in the bureau's program this year is the beginning of a campaign to eradicate contagious abortion in cattle, a disease said to be the source of the dreaded undulent fever in man. The campaign against bovine tuberculosis practically has been completed.

McCormick Replaced

John Henry Newman of Columbus, defeated Democratic candidate for secretary of state last fall, yesterday was appointed as state librarian to succeed George E. McCormick, former Marion newspaper man. The yearly salary is $5,000.

Newman ran against Clarence J. Brown for the office of secretary of state, but Brown was reelected by an overwhelming margin. Newman was state librarian under former Governor Cox.

Other appointments made in Guthery's department include the following: Mrs. Lucille Brick of Columbus, confidential secretary; E. E. Ellenwood, Coalton, chief of the division of plant industry, and Gerald J. McCurry of Columbus, chief of the bureau of inland lakes and parks.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB TO STAGE CAMPAIGN

Two Teams To Be Captained by Clarence Bolin and Clyde Ullom.

A membership drive whose purpose will be to organize Democrats throughout the county will be inaugurated Feb. 10 by the Marion County Democratic club, it was decided last night at the club's regular bi-monthly meeting in the Democratic headquarters in the Marion National Bank building.

Two teams were organized to conduct the drive, one of which will be known as the George White team captained by Clarence Bolin, and the other, the Franklin Roosevelt team, captained by Clyde Ullom.

The campaign will open on Feb. 10 and will be held until April 1, at which time the losing side will give a banquet to the winners. Weekly reports will be made every Monday night at the headquarters to Mrs. Delsia Baker, secretary.

President Ralph Grubaugh last night appointed Charles Ritzler, Jay Vaughan, Mrs. Mary Kelley and Miss Stella Smith as a reception committee.

The 200 members who gathered last night were entertained by a World War veteran who played rattlebones. Lunch was served at the conclusion of the meeting.

HEARING OPENS

Bishop Cannon on Crutches as Misconduct Trial Commences.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Bishop Cannon of the Methodist Episcopal Church South today hobbled into the Mount Vernon Methodist church on crutches to face charges. The doors were locked immediately.

Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, who has charge of the proceedings, sent word to reporters by a uniformed policeman, who was standing guard at a side door that he would see them.

He informed them "this is an ecclesiastical proceeding carried on as a church law prescribes and nothing will be given to the public until it is over. When a conclusion is reached, I will give out the results as well as the names of the men who are conducting the hearings."

Parking Problem More Baffling Than Relativity

PASADENA, Calif., Feb. 3—Dr. Charles E. St. John, astronomer credited with making one of four proofs of Einstein's theory of relativity, asked himself a question yesterday he could not answer. "Now where in the dickens," he pondered, "did I park my car?"

The problem presented itself as he emerged from a store after a 25 minute shopping trip.

From a period of study he formulated the hypothesis that his car had been stolen.

Police, however, found the car just where he left it two hours from the start.

DEATH TAKES LADY DECIES

Could Heiress Who Dazzled British Society Passes Away at 39.

FROM FAMOUS FAMILY

Granddaughter of Jay Gould; British Court Triumph Recalled.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The former Helen Vivian Gould, American heiress who as the youthful bride of the fifth Baron Decies dazzled English society, died today of a heart attack which developed from jaundice. She was 39 years old.

Besides her husband, who has had a famous career in the army, she left three children, a son and two daughters.

The granddaughter of Jay Gould, whose railroad manipulations made him a money king of the post Civil war period, Lady Decies came to be known in England for the spectacles she sometimes presented society, her penchant for the unexpected, and as a lavish but charming hostess.

She was married in 1911 when she was 19 years old. The ceremony was performed in New York, its splendor and the prominence of the principals giving it wide publicity.

Her name was frequently in the headlines, particularly when on her honeymoon she smoked a cigaret at the railroad station in Brunswick, Ga. Her reception in the British court was a triumph. She appeared before the king and queen in a white satin gown embroidered in diamonds, pearls and crystals and a train rich with silver lilies and ermine. She later became a prominent figure in society.

She was active in Red Cross work during the war, and since has been a great traveler. Lady Decies was one of the heirs to the $75,000,000 Gould fortune. Her father was the late George Jay Gould.

CLEANUP ORDERED

Deputy Sheriffs Invade Lawless Section of Scioto County.

By The Associated Press.

PORTSMOUTH, O., Feb. 3—Deputy sheriffs will invade the wooded hills of Green township to stamp out the reign of lawlessness which the Scioto county grand jury has blamed for four killings and the wounding of 25 others during the raids of recent years.

Disregarding reports that moonshiners had threatened to fire on raiders, Sheriff Maurice Caldwell has ordered his deputies to clean up the township, in the eastern section of the county.

The grand jury has charged that witnesses have been intimidated by a moonshine gang, making it difficult to obtain enough evidence to warrant indictments.

RELIEF FUND PROGRAM HIT BY PRESIDENT

Proposed Appropriations Strike at Self-Government, Hoover Says.

STATEMENT GIVEN PRESS

Gives Views in Response to Senate Special Session Threats.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—President Hoover today opposed the proposed appropriations for relief as measures which would strike at the very root of self government.

While the President expressed confidence that the Red Cross together with local aid could take care of both the drouth and unemployment situations he said he was willing to pledge himself to ask the aid of every resource of the federal government in the event other means should fail. The President expressed his views personally to the regular semi-weekly press conference.

President Hoover said the present problem did not "present a question so much as to whether people would go hungry or cold but rather a question of the best method of preventing hunger and cold."

The friendliness and the charity of the American people, he said, can be relied upon to take care of fellow citizens in distress.

Confers With Watson

His views were given after he and Senator Watson, the Republican leader, had discussed the legislative situation at a White House breakfast.

The President said he had received reports only today that no one is going hungry or need go hungry or cold.

Mr. Hoover said he had spent much of his life in fighting human hardship both in this country and abroad and that he did not believe he could be accused of a lack of human sympathy.

He declared he would no more see starvation occurring among the people of this country than would any senator or representative.

One of the major objections advanced by him against the method of aid proposed by some members of congress was that it would strike at the roots of the system of self-help which he said was a major principle of this country.

Quotes Cleveland

He quoted President Cleveland to the effect that while the people should support the government the government should not support the people.

He then pointed out that the Red Cross has accepted full responsibility for relief of the present distress.

He noted the organization also had refused to accept administration of the pending $25,000,000 relief appropriation.

The text of the president's remarks follows, in part:

"Certain senators have issued a public statement to the effect that unless the President and the house of representatives agree to appropriations from the federal treasury for charitable purposes they will force an extra session of congress.

"I do not wish to add acrimony to a discussion, but would rather state this case as I see its fundamentals.

"It is a question as to whether the American people on one hand will maintain the spirit of charity and mutual self-help through voluntary giving and the responsibility of local government as distinguished on the other hand from appropriations out of the federal treasury for such purposes.

"My own conviction is strongly that if we break down this sense of responsibility of individual generosity to individual and mutual self-help in this country in times of national difficulty and if we start appropriations of this character we have not only impaired something infinitely valuable in the life of the American people but have struck at the roots of self government.

The senate coalition of administration opponents was reunited yesterday to accept the challenge of the house Republican majority to force the extra session to obtain relief appropriation.

Borah Stirs 'Em Up

Amid applause Senator Borah of Idaho, a leader of the Republican independents, sounded the rallying cry for the showdown. Democratic leaders crossed the aisle to grasp the Idahoan's hand as he shouted back his answer to the house leadership's ultimatum of "no compromise."

38 MOSLEM REBELS EXECUTED IN TURKEY

Wholesale Gallows Scene Enacted as Evidence of New Regime's Power.

By The Associated Press.

MENEMEN, Turkey, Feb. 3—The bodies of 38 Turkish Moslem revolutionaries swung from gibbets in the cold Balkan wind today in a stern warning from the republic that the days of the Caliphate have passed forever.

Singly and in some cases by groups the condemned men convicted of leading an absolutist revolutionary movement here Dec. 23 were led at dawn from their cells to the gallows where ropes hung ready, swung them aloft.

Because of the martial law which has been in effect since the revolt citizens were kept in their homes until 8 a. m. and there were almost no witnesses to the executions before a few officials. An occasional scream could be heard from women peeping from behind shuttered windows, however, and with the advance of day shuddering crowds passed the gruesome scene.

At Least Seven Happy

Perhaps the only cheerful place in Menemen today was the prison where seven persons rejoiced because their sentences were commuted at the last moment from death to 24 years' imprisonment. They were all over 65 or under 20 years of age.

In cases where it was possible the gibbets were erected on the spots where the condemned men had angered the Menemen populace two days before the Christian Christmas and pleaded with them to arise in behalf of Islam, destroy the western innovations of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Gazi, replace the derby with a fez and restore the Caliphate of Allah's golden age.

A young Turkish army officer seeing what was happening rushed to give the alarm. He was caught by the reactionaries and beheaded. Troops and police put down the movement and hundreds of arrests followed.

Others Sentenced

Besides those condemned to die in the ensuing trials 41 dervishes, priests and their acolytes must serve sentences of three to 24 years hard labor for clandestine religious practices and failure to notify the government of the machinations of Sheik Esad, the leader of the movement.

The Menemen prisons are crammed now with 300 suspects awaiting trial by military courts on the same charges. Among these are dervishes suspected of demoralizing Turkish girls, many of whom have been found throughout Smyrna province tattooed with mystic dervish emblems and mottoes such as "though are my goddess."

Sheik Esad, aged 96, and known as the Rasputin of Turkey because of his unusual power with women, was one of those condemned to be hanged, but he cheated the gallows with a natural death in his cell last week. His son, the old priest Ali, aged 64, was one of those hanged today, however—the oldest of the group of doomed men and their leader after the death of his father.

On the breast of each of the hanged men after execution of the court's sentence there was placed a placard, on which were the words in Latin characters: "Thus end traitors to Turkey."

PASS $1,000 MARK IN RED CROSS DRIVE

Campaign for Drouth Relief Gains Headway; More To Report.

Contributions of Marion and Marion county residents in the drive of the Red Cross chapter to raise $5,000 for drouth relief had passed the $1,000 mark today, Miss Margaret Dowd, secretary, announced.

One of the seven rural branches of the chapter has reported $100. Others have not been heard from.

An appeal for funds to raise the Marion county quota in the $10,000,000 national program of the organization has been made by direct mail, public appeal and through the churches.

VETS' BILL BACKERS HOPEFUL OF SUCCESS

Advocates of Cash Bonus Confident of Compromise in Congress.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Advocates of cash payments of veterans' compensation certificates remained hopeful today they would win some kind of compromise in congress, but Republican leaders went ahead marshalling evidence against the project.

Prominent industrialists and insurance officials were called to put their views before the house ways and means committee. More were to follow during the week with every indication the hearings on the numerous veterans relief proposals would be protracted.

Chairman Hawley of the ways and means group hoped to have Alfred F. Sloan, president of General Motors, take the stand today as well as W. H. George of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, E. D. Duffield of the Prudential; Clarence W. Woolley of the American Radiator company, and Samuel W. Reyburn of the firm of Lord & Taylor.

CAMPBELL DELAYS AUTO SPEED DASH

Held Up by Weather After Setting 240-Mile Unofficial Mark Yesterday.

By The Associated Press.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 3—Poor visibility and a strong wind today prevented Captain Malcolm Campbell, British race car driver, from making an official attempt to lower the world land speed record of 231 miles an hour.

Highly elated over his machine's performance yesterday when he attained an unofficial clip of approximately 240 miles an hour the 46 year old British driver was confident of setting a new mark considerably higher than the present record of 231 miles an hour established in 1920 by the late Sir Henry Segrave also of England.

Campbell calculated his approximate speed from his tachometer, which registers his engine revolutions.

With the arrival here of Orlie Porter, official timer for the American Automobile association, orders were issued for the setting up of the electrical clocking device which records a driver's time for his runs to a thousandth of a second. From the elapsed time his speed in miles per hour is determined.

Campbell planned to take a four mile running start. After flashing past the finish wire, he will require approximately four miles to bring his car to a stop.

Water Supply in Napier Cut Off; Full Extent of Disaster Toll Unknown.

By The Associated Press.

AUCKLAND, N. Z., Feb. 3. Earthquake and fire levelled the city of Napier, New Zealand today, leaving a casualty list reported at 100 dead and 1,000 injured and wrecked four nearby towns causing an undetermined number of fatalities and injuries.

Napier was still ablaze and virtually helpless tonight, the quake having cut off its water supply. Its stunned populace stood by unable to count its dead and without effective means of fighting the fire. Dynamiting was resorted to in an attempt to check the flames.

The first shock came shortly before 11 a. m., shaking a large portion of the coastal region of Hawkes bay province, of which Napier is the capital. Hastings, a town 18 miles from Napier, reported 51 dead and 100 injured.

The towns of Waipawa and Waipukurau also suffered. Fire from the Napier blaze caused the shutting off of oil in the tanks at Port Ahuriri. Early reports of casualties were expected to be exceeded as no accurate count could be made immediately.

The British war sloop Veronica, anchored at Napier, was grounded but subsequently refloated. The steamer Northumberland, headed for sea when the water in the harbor began to recede. Early reports of a tidal wave following the quake were denied.

The business area of Hastings was devastated by the quake and a conflagration which followed.

Several persons were killed in the collapse of the Roach building and five women died when an apartment house fell in about them.

Scores were injured in Napier, a town of about 15,000 on Hawkes bay when building collapsed in the streets and thousands were left homeless.

The heavy shocks, which came in a series levelled Bluff Hill, on the outskirts of Napier, and houses built on its slopes were sent crashing into ruins.

The fire spread to the Napier hospital nurses' home, which collapsed killing several patients and nurses.

The quakes were reported continuing and hundreds arranged to sleep in the open. All communication with the outside was severed excepting radio service which delivered first reports of the disaster.

Relief was being rushed from all available places by warship, train and airplane.

CARDINGTON, Feb. 3—An old Cardington landmark is in ashes today following a fire which caused $3,500 damage last midnight.

A defective flue is believed to have started the blaze which destroyed the home formerly owned by the late Peter Eavilley near the north corporation line on the Marion road. The property was bought last spring by Lawrence Zink. It was occupied by Mr. Zink, Tom Vincent and a Mrs. Doty, relatives.

Mrs. Doty discovered the fire at midnight. The two men, sleeping in another section of the house, were aroused when she broke a window leading to their home.

The local fire department was called but the blaze had gained too much headway to be stopped. Only a few clothes were saved. The building was insured but the loss on the furniture was not covered.

SAY PROTEST MADE ON SITE

Rumors Current in Bucyrus That Men To Appear Before Postal Department.

Special to The Star.

BUCYRUS, Feb. 3—Rumors that a group of citizens and business men had taken it upon themselves to send representatives to Washington D. C. to make a formal protest to the selection of the Gormley estate on West Warren street as the site of the new $140,000 postoffice, could not be affirmed today.

H. A. Paxton, prominent business man, is known to have left Bucyrus for Washington last night but confirmation of just what steps he expects to take in regard to the matter could not be learned.

Although protests to the selection of the site have been voiced by petitions signed by hundreds of residents and business men, Joseph R. Neff, real estate dealer through whom the sale of the property was made, is going ahead with the preparation of the deed preparatory to sending it to Washington.

The property was sold for $24,540. Protests were made because of the location which is thought by many to be too far removed from the business district.

FARM BUREAU GETS SECRETARY'S REPORT

Murray D. Lincoln Outlines Aims of Agricultural Group in Annual Meet.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS O., Feb 3—Domestic as well as other phases of farm life are being studied by the farm bureau with a view to their betterment, Murray D Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm Bureau, said in his report to the annual meeting here today

The bureau's problem he said include the farm kitchen and social life generally as well as taxation, credit and cooperative buying and marketing.

Describing rural credit as one of the country's major problems, Lincoln said the bureau hoped to develop a system whereby the farmers may have closer contact with the big reservoirs of credit at reasonable rates in order to finance operations.

He said the bureau was continuing its work in rural electrification which eventually will relieve the farm housewife of the drudgery that too often falls to her lot

Decisions of common pleas court were upheld today by the third district court of appeals in two suits which the higher court heard recently at Lima.

The judgment of common pleas court in setting aside a deed in the case of Curtis C. Straw and others against Artemus Straw and others was upheld by the appellate court, while the jury verdict for the defendant in the case of the Reed Investment Co against Mrs. J. L Hoover also was upheld.

SENATE TURNS DOWN PRESCRIPTION PLAN

Defeats Proposal To Allow Physicians Free Hand in Dispensing Liquor.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—The senate still is cold to the Wickersham commission's recommendation that physicians be given a free hand in the prescription of liquor.

A proposal to lift the present restrictions, insofar as they apply to the District of Columbia, was defeated yesterday by a vote of 45 to 25. A move to reconsider this vote also was defeated, 39 to 29.

The proposition was in the form of an amendment to the district of Columbia enforcement act sponsored by Senator Howell, Republican of Nebraska. Debate indicated many of the senators were viewing the matter from the national aspect rather than as a local issue.

Anti-prohibitionists, incidentally, pointed out the minority favoring the amendment was the largest recorded for liberalization of the prohibition laws since enactment of the Eighteenth amendment.

Today the senate expected to lay the bill aside again to consider another of the pending supply bills, but other amendments awaited votes, among them one by Senator Bingham Republican of Connecticut, under which doctors would be permitted to prescribe alcohol in the form of beer or ale as well as whisky and wine Present limitations as to quantity of alcohol prescribed would govern

WITH the race for the championship of the league rapidly narrowing, the eyes of all the followers of the Y-Church cage circuit are centered on the outcome of the First Presbyterian-Waldo Lutheran conflict Saturday night. Besides this game, five others are booked for the week, three on Tuesday and two on Saturday. All will be played on the Y court.

Secondary only to the Waldo-Presbie battle will be the First Reformed-Epworth M. E. fray on Tuesday night. Neither of the latter two outfits have more than an outside chance of finishing higher than fourth but each is fighting hard to finish higher than the other.

Games tonight will see Christian No. 1 clashing with U. B. and Christian No. 2 mixing with Trinity Baptists. St Mary's will meet Prospect, and Calvary takes on Lee Street Saturday.

Other Games

In the Tuesday games, Christian No. 1 should have little difficulty downing the United Brethren and Trinity should take the measure of Christian No. 2 and Epworth should beat Reformed. On Saturday Prospect and St. Mary's will decide what looks like a tossup. Calvary should hand Lee Street another beating and Waldo will be a slight underdog against Presbyterians.

Despite the fact that Waldo was knocked off recently in a surprise upset by the lowly Prospect five, the out-of-town quintet are expected to give the league-leading Presbyterians a terrific battle. They may even beat the leaders. It wouldn't be such a big upset. Had not Prospect caught them on an off night they would never even have come close to beating them.

If the Presbyterians defeat Waldo the league officials might just as well have the pennant lettered, "First Presbyterians, Champions of 1931" for there will be nothing to stop them after that. If, however, Waldo is the winner, the leadership will again be thrown into a deadlock. Waldo trails now by a single game, having lost one in seven, while the Presbies have a perfect record.

Centers Too Uneven

If the First Reformed outfit had a pivot man capable of holding Epworth's towering Zig Snyder in check, the Prospect street aggregation would have a 50-50 chance of winning the game. However, matching Snyder, who extends some six feet four inches above terra firma against Pete Howison, who will not clear the six foot mark is an obstacle which is not likely to be overcome. Howison would give Snyder an even battle if their heights were even but with Snyder's advantage Howison will have little opportunity to display his real worth. Reformed might switch the lineup to place a taller man against Snyder -that is they might if they had one, but if they have he has been kept under cover so far this season. It looks like a bad night for Reformed.

Capt. Lee Davis of the Duke university football team, will seek to became a barrister at the North Carolina law examination in January.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

ALTHOUGH the unwieldy Ohio college conference recognizes no one as official champion of the circuit two teams are at present busily engaged in claiming the title honors in the circuit. Wooster, with one of the strongest outfits to represent the Presbyterian school in some years and Mt Union, with another exceptionally strong organization are both claiming the best team in the league.

Cage fans will get a chance to decide the question for themselves Thursday night when Wooster invades the Mt. Union campus for the crucial game. The team that wins the game will be generally accepted as the outstanding quintet in Ohio college circles.

To date Mt Union has won 11 of 13 starts. Wooster has an equally good record. With the natural rivalry which exists between the two the game should be a spirited one.

If one can judge by the performances of the Martel girls' team, competition in the girls' division of the Marion county cage league is keener this season than it was last year. With a team composed for the main part of seasoned veterans of last year's championship outfit, the Prashun coached Martel sextet has been unable to crash into the victory column in five attempts. Which is one reason why it seems the other teams in the circuit are stronger this season.

Noting the improvement shown so far this season by the individual players in the league I have already began to have misgivings concerning the naming of a mythical all-county sextet of girls this season. There are a lot of outstanding performers in the league, so many in fact that there is certain to be a loud wail made when six girls are singled out and pronounced "the best."

• • •

It really doesn't matter much I'm used to hearing protests. So just for the purpose of allowing county league fans the opportunity of thinking up wise cracks about this year's selections, here is a list of girls who are certain to figure in the naming of any all-county team of girls this season.

Forwards, M. Reed of Martel, Hedges and Porter of Green Camp, Cooper and Eichhorn of Pleasant,

MARY E. REED

Kyle of Prospect, Washburn of Morral, S. and R. Timson of Caledonia, Kranor of Claridon and Lemke of Kirkpatrick. Guards, McIntyre of Morral, Vaughan of Pleasant, the Chard sisters of Green Camp, Williams of Prospect, and Foos of Caledonia.

The all county team hasn't been named yet but if it will do you any good I suggest you start picking faults in them immediately. It'll get you in training for when the team is named.

Despite the fact that she is playing on a tall end team Mary Ellen Reed of Martel gets my vote for being one of the country's best. And there's that!

CENTRAL LEAGUE TO CONTINUE PLAY WITH FOUR TEAM ROSTER

May Enlarge Circuit If Entries Are Secured Before Feb. 15.

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 3 Unless two more franchises can be found before the February 15 deadline, the Central league will go along with its present membership of four cities.

The decision to continue the circuit, hard hit last year by a decline in attendance and the withdrawals of Springfield and Richmond, Ind., was reached at a meeting of officials here yesterday.

Akron, O., and Muncie, Ind., were considered the most likely cities to be added, although Portsmouth, O., also has been mentioned. The membership at present consists of Dayton and Canton, O., Erie, Pa., and Fort Wayne, Ind.

E. C. Jacobs, president of the league announced he would protest to baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis against the transfer of the Springfield club to Bloomington, Ill., in the Three-Eye league. He charged the Springfield withdrawal was contrary to the league constitution and was based on a misrepresentation of facts. He also asserted the Three-Eye was attempting to disrupt the Central league "through attempts to influence our club to give up their franchises."

Joe Dunn took the Springfield club to Bloomington and Springfield business men recently refused to support attempts at reorganization.

Frederick W. Howell, Dayton attorney, formally took over control of the Dayton club, which had been operated by the Louisville American association club at a farm.

TOUGH LOSS

Buckeyes Lose to Columbia on Last Minute Goal, 30-29.

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—A field goal by Lou Bender, forward, in the last 15 seconds gave Columbia a 30 to 29 victory over Ohio State's basketball team here last night.

Led by Harold Ervin and Lew Hinchman, Ohio piled up a 15 to 10 lead in the first half. Wesley Fesler, Ohio's all-American football player, exhibited a great defensive game in the first half.

The Lions began to cut down Ohio's lead slowly in the last half. With less than two minutes to play, Columbia cut loose with a long shooting game that gave them a slight advantage. Fesler and his teammates came back strong, however, and held a one point margin until the closing seconds.

Sock! And Fargo Express is Suddenly Sidetracked

By The Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Feb. 3—A sawed-off, barrel-chested young man from Minneapolis, named Henry Tuttle, fighting under the name of King Tut, finds himself in a spot today to cause Tony Canzoneri, lightweight champion of the world, a lot of worry.

Tut jumped into the commanding position as a ranking challenger for the lightweight championship last night by scoring a startling upset victory over the battle-scarred Billy Petrolle in exactly 24 seconds.

He knocked out the famed "Fargo express" before he could get out of his own corner and to the amazement of a record-smashing capacity crowd of 10,249 spectators.

The king intends to force Canzoneri into a title match.

Petrolle had been in line for the match as the result of a victory over Canzoneri before he became lightweight champion, and also his surprise triumph over Jimmy McLarnin.

The knockout was the first for Petrolle although he had twice previously fallen victim to technical knockouts.

As the bell clanged starting the fight, Tut charged out of his corner, rushed across the ring and caught Petrolle before he could advance a step. Swinging a right hand punch that started from his hips, he caught the bewildered Petrolle on the rim of the chin. That blow dazed him and he desperately attempted to clinch, but the bull-like Tut instantly wrestled him off and then cracked him on the jaw with a barrage of rights and lefts. Petrolle's legs bent under him and he sank to the canvas, landing on his haunches, with his head hanging over the second rope of the ring.

While sitting in this position, unconscious, to the excitement, Petrolle was counted out. He instinctively attempted to get up at the count of nine, but his benumbed muscles refused to respond and he sank back, completely out. He did not land a single punch.

Last night's battle drew the largest crowd in Minnesota's boxing history and a gate second only to the world's middleweight championship fight between Mike Gibbons and Mike O'Dowd, St. Paul rivals, fought here 11 years ago.

Tut weighed 138¼ pounds. He had agreed to weigh no more than 140 pounds.

Wednesday night on the Armory court the Company B team will play the Mt. Victory A. C. and the Marion Business College girls will play the Mt. Victory girls.

"Jumping Joe" Savoldi To Enter Wrestling Game

By The Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3—"Jumping Joe" Savoldi, who went places with a football as fullback for Notre Dame, will do his future tackling on a wrestling mat.

Savoldi said last night he was in training here to become a wrestler. He cites the case of Ed Don George, former Michigan university athlete, who in a short month has advanced to claimant of the world heavyweight wrestling title.

"I want to earn enough money to send my brother to college," said Joe, "and attend law school myself. Wrestling will give me that opportunity."

Savoldi tipped the scales at 206 pounds.

Penn University to Reorganize Athletic Plan

By The Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 3—The entire athletic structure at the University of Pennsylvania will be reorganized upon a basis of simplicity and "under-emphasis" in the most drastic single upheaval of eastern intercollegiate sports history.

Control and management of athletics have been taken over completely by Thomas S. Gates, president of the university, and his board of trustees while the sports themselves will be given back to the students. The present all-powerful council on athletics, composed of alumni, students and faculty, will be abolished.

Spring and pre-season training in football, training camps, training tables, dormitories for athletes as well as scholarship, beyond those won in the classroom, have been wiped out. In all sports coaches will be made members of the faculty and will receive the salaries of faculty members.

Intercollegiate competition will be fostered with natural rivals on a year-round basis through the whole range of teams in each sport. Intra-mural athletics will be stressed.

One department—physical education—will control the entire athletic scheme of things at the university in the futuure, the president announced. It will be administered by a dean responsible to the president and the trustees. Three divisions of the department—student health, physical instruction and intercollegiate athletics—will be in charge of directors.

Wilson Gets Raise, but Amount Is Kept Secret

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3—The actual figure on Hack Wilson's 1931 Cub contract is not common property but baseball's current home run champion will be getting plenty, even if it is only part of what the guessers have guessed for him.

Today's quotations ranged from $30,000 to $37,500, striking $35,000 in between. The lowest quotation would represent a substantial increase over the $22,500 Wilson was said to have received last season.

70 Big League Games Booked for Training

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3 American league baseball clubs will meet National league teams 70 times during the spring training season, and will play 134 contests with minor league clubs.

The Detroit Tigers have arranged the heaviest list, having scheduled 10 games with Pittsburgh and 25 with Pacific coast league teams. The New York Yankees will play 33 games, St. Louis 26, Chicago and Philadelphia 24 each, Boston and Cleveland 22 each, and Washington 18. Of the White Sox's and Athletics' 24 contests, 17 are listed with National league teams.

OHIO WESLEYAN TO CLASH WITH MIAMI BASKETEERS TONIGHT

Bishops Will Retain First Place Despite Outcome of Conflict.

DELAWARE, O., Feb. 3 Ohio Wesleyan will defend its undefeated leadership in the Buckeye conference against Miami university's last-place basketball team here tonight. Win or lose, the Bishops will still remain in first place, for every other team in the conference has suffered at least two defeats.

If the Bishops are victorious tonight, they will remain in the undefeated class of the conference another week since they will not meet another Buckeye foe until they journey to Athens for a return game with Ohio university Wednesday, Feb. 11. That week will determine whether or not the Bishops are to ride through to a championship for in that week they meet Ohio on the Bobcat floor and entertain the Cincinnati team here.

Bishop fans are enthusiastic over their team's chances for a conference championship and even for an undefeated season in the conference. Their hopes are based on the fact that four of the players who are now included as the seven highest scorers in the conference are Ohio Wesleyan men. Eric Gandrup of Rocky River, forward, is in second place; George Myers of Danville, Pa., Bishop center, is in third place; Howard Ginaven of Springfield, Bishop forward, is in fifth place, and Wilmer Dickes of Adena, sophomore flash guard is the sixth highest individual scorer.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

The complexion of the fruit market has undergone some recent changes as the end of the season for a number of varieties of apples have been reached. Where three or four popular varieties have disappeared, only one new apple has been added, the Gano at four to six pounds for 25 cents.

Banana, Delicious, Grimes Golden, Baldwins and Jonathans are among the varieties crossed off the market list today. A few stores, which laid in an unusually large supply of fruit, still have a few pounds of some of these varieties.

Greening apples, Pippins, and Gano varieties now rule the market. The Gano brand will be the last to leave the market before the early 1931 crop arrives

GRAIN PRICES HIGHER TODAY

Lack of Moisture in Wheat Belt Aids Values in Chicago Pit.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb 3 — Grains advanced early today, stimulated by persistent lack of moisture through out the winter and spring wheat belt, and by unseasonable warmth. France reported unfavorable conditions for new wheat, with seed rotted owing to prolonged wet weather, and Argentina also complained of excessive rains

Starting unchanged to ¾ cents higher, wheat afterward scored material gains. Corn opened ¾ off to ⅛ up and subsequently rose all around

Increased demand for new crop wheat future deliveries soon carried prices upward more than a cent a bushel. Offerings were scarce. Advices covering all domestic wheat sections noted rainless skies, temperatures above normal, and almost total absence of snow

Some falling-off in wheat primary receipts was also noted, reducing the total to about the same as a year ago

Corn and oats sympathized with wheat strength, and responded to a sharp decrease in arrivals of corn at leading terminals Corn primary receipts 626,000 bushels, were only about half as large as at this time last year. Arrivals in Chicago amounted to but 63 cars, against 169 a year ago.

Provisions were firm, influenced by upturns of cereals.

EXPECT TAX TOTAL TO PASS $750,000

Treasurer Says Three-Quarter Million Mark Will Be Reached Today.

A total of $750,000 in tax collections in Marion county was expected to be reached at the close of business today in the office of County Treasurer Bert J. Shelton.

When yesterday's receipts were totaled it was found $18,946 62 had been collected, which boosted the total for the December collection to $734,041 97, as compared to $843,403 23 on the same date a year ago.

This year's collection, which started seven days later than last year, is averaging $20,400 each day as compared with $19,614 a year ago.

Banks in the county which aided in the collection two weeks ago probably will add $100 000 to the total when the money is turned in to Shelton in the near future

When the treasurer's books are closed, a total of approximately $1,000 000 for the half-year is expected to have been collected as compared to $1,096,462 83 a year ago. The charge this year, however, is less due to the 10 per cent decreased valuation on rural land and on city buildings, Shelton pointed out, thereby making this year's collection proportionately equal to last year.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be mixed at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it, you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which follow cold epidemics, are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

How to Escape FLU

1 Avoid so far as possible the places where flu germs are most likely to be spread; overcrowded cars and public meeting places; overheated, stuffy rooms.

2 Be careful of close contact with others and beware of all coughers and sneezers; breathe through the nose, get fresh air, but avoid drafts or chilling.

3 Get lots of rest. Eat plenty of citrus fruits. Keep the bowels open. Take extra precaution to keep in good physical condition, so your system will have high resistance against germs.

4 Above all, avoid catching colds. They lower your resistance to the flu germ. Ward them off. At the first sign of any cold, take Bayer Aspirin and remain indoors if possible until your cold is gone. If you have a sore throat, dissolve some Bayer Aspirin tablets in water and gargle; this will relieve the soreness and reduce the inflammation.

5 If you have any reason to suspect even a touch of flu, call your doctor at once.

Judge Takes Mercy Plea of Convicted Secretary Under Consideration.

By United Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb 3 Daisy DeBoe's plea for mercy was under consideration today by Judge William C. Doran who had denied her a new trial on charges that she stole money from Clara Bow, her employer.

Arguments on her application for probation will be heard next Tuesday but it was indicated it would require probation officers at least two weeks longer than that to complete their report.

Defense Attorney William Bernie late yesterday based his plea for a new trial on charges that the verdict finding Miss De Boe guilty of grand theft was obtained "by lot and chance" contending the jury had found her guilty on one charge and not guilty on 34 as a compromise after being deadlocked for many hours.

Bernie also contended that letters to Clara Bow from Harry Richman, Rex Bell and Dr Earl Pierson should not have been introduced at the trial because theft of the letters had not been charged in the indictment.

Judge Doran, in denying the plea, ruled that even if there were technical errors in the record, "they were not of a sort to prejudice any of the defendant's constitutional rights."

He added that he considered the evidence of Miss De Boe's guilt as "overwhelming."

OFFICERS GET SLEEP.

For the third successive night, Sheriff Charles C. Fye and his deputies last night were able to get their full night's sleep. The office failed to get a single call during the night, the third time in a row that no calls were registered.

The present route 30 from Mansfield to Delphos runs through Galion, Marion, Kenton and Lima, cities whose combined populations exceed 100,000 as compared to 20,000 people who live along the Lincoln Highway between those two cities, he pointed out. Because it directly serves more people than the Lincoln, the Harding highway should be allowed to retain the 30 designation, the Galion man said.

Fair Tax

MOTORISTS of Marion and vicinity will pay an average of approximately $20 each in gasoline taxes during 1931, according to Mrs. Della Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto club.

Mrs. Gallagher bases her statement on gas tax collections in Ohio for 1930.

The gasoline tax, she asserts, has been increased from time to time but motorists will look with favor upon it as long as the funds are used for road building as they are at present.

There is a tendency in some states, she says, to divert the gasoline tax income to other purposes since it is so easily collected.

Very Annoying

AN early morning caprice, accompanied by much off color language was enacted near Main and Mill streets early on a recent morning. Persons walking along the street stopped to watch two elderly men, one flourishing a club, running rapidly down the street, coattails flying.

Inquiry into the cause of the impromptu footrace revealed that a Mill street barber, about 50 years of age, had been missing his newspaper on a number of consecutive mornings. Resolved to find the pilferer, he posted himself inside the shop and, armed with a club, waited for the paper thief.

A few moments later a man about 45 years of age approached the shop, glanced around to see that no one was watching, and shoved the paper up under his coat.

Rushing out the door the barber unloosed much profanity and immediately gave chase to the other man, who was well on his way when he found himself discovered. For several blocks, the middle-aged men ran at top speed, neither gaining on the other.

No, the barber did not catch him, but he recognized him and has since not missed a single edition of his morning paper.

No Overhead

MODERN bootlegging assumes many forms, a talk with police will reveal.

One of the most popular methods in which the bootlegger is out but very little if he is captured, is known as "pocket bootlegging." These persons, usually those who are unable to peddle liquors by automobile or sell it in larger quantities, are veritable "walking bars" selling a small glass of their potent fluid for 25 cents.

Police believe they have more or less controlled the pocket bootlegging in the uptown business section with the recent arrest and conviction of two men.

Loafing around at strategic points uptown, these men would peddle their drinks in an inconspicuous manner. But police soon caught on to the "racket" and a short time later had broken up the practice.

Quite an Idea

THE miniature golf courses will at least have to share honors and mayhap be compelled to play second fiddle to a new idea of summer entertainment if the whisperings abroad in the land grow in to real talk. Some one with an eye for the unusual has worked out a delightful way of spending an afternoon out-of-doors by concocting a miniature fish pond where one might satisfy that urge to go fishing and yet not leave the stone sidewalks. The fish ponds, so the story is told, will be well stocked with fish brought in fresh each day from the lake and trees, forming a miniature forest will furnish the shade. So many simoleons for your fishpole and bait, so much for each fish caught and last, and to most folks best, so many for the use of the little shack, frying pan, stove, where you can cook for yourself.

Execution at East St. Louis Said To Be Outcome of Feud.

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill. Feb. 3—The deliberate execution of three men in the gambling house of "Wide Open" Smith in the business section were recalled today details of the St. Valentine's day massacre of seven gangsters in Chicago two years ago this month.

Bodies of the three victims were found late yesterday covered with brush and sticks in a wayside ditch near Granite City, 10 miles north of here. Each man had been shot eight to ten times with submachine guns and automatic pistols.

Authorities believe the killings were the outcome of a gambling feud.

Take First Step for Ohio Congressional Change

Senate Election Group Named To Inquire into Proposed Redistricting; Candidate Questionnaire Bill Amended.

By The Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O. Feb. 3.—A subcommittee of four Republicans and two Democrats selected last night by the Ohio senate elections committee, was prepared today to inquire into the matter of redistricting the state into 24 instead of 22 congressional districts in accordance with the 1930 census.

The sub-committee was directed to inquire into the matter and submit a bill to carry out the redistricting plan. C. J. Anderson, Republican of Richland county, was chosen chairman.

The senate elections committee at the same time decided that the bill of Senator Joseph N. Ackerman Republican of Cleveland, making it a violation of the corrupt practices act to submit questionnaires to candidates for public office was too severe and amended it to permit sending questionnaires to determine the candidates' views on a matter but making any demand for a pledge from the office seeker a violation of the law.

The Scioto county school board controversy was brought to the attention of the senate by Senator John A. Lloyd, Republican of Portsmouth, whose bill to require any county boards of education to give public notice to all concerned on a contemplated redistricting of the county, was approved unanimously and sent to the house.

The senate joint resolution on taxation submitted originally by Senator James A. Reynolds, Democrat of Cleveland, but so amended by the Republican majority in the senate and passed by them that the author voted against it, was sent to the house without debate. The resolution, as amended by the senate Republicans would provide equal representation of the governor on a committee of nine to draft proposed tax legislation.

"OUTWARD BOUND" COMING TO OHIO FOR 2-DAY STAND

Well-Known Stage Show Here by Way of Silver Screen.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

"OUTWARD BOUND" comes to the Ohio Wednesday and Thursday with Leslie Howard, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Helen Chandler, Beryl Mercer, Alec B. Francis and others, playing the leading roles in the famous stage play by Sutton Vane.

Fairbanks Jr.

The picture should be able to present the story, especially the scenes aboard the mysterious outward bound English liner, with greater scope of the unseen and mysterious, than was possible in the stage production.

Many theories have been advanced in the past by scientists, spiritualists and members of the clergy as to what happens in after life, all of course more or less guesswork, but it remained for a deep-visioned English dramatist to present one of the most plausible and daring solutions to this question. His theory has been incorporated into the screen production, "Outward Bound."

INA CLAIRE STARS IN MARION PICTURE

Here's the clever story "The Royal Family of Broadway," starring Ina Claire and Fredric March, with Mary Brian and Henrietta Crosman leading a splendid cast in support, is coming to the Marion Wednesday and Thursday.

Ina Claire

Edna Ferber and George S. Kaufman collaborated in writing the stage play, which those who have read believe to be the life story of one of Broadway's most famous families of actors and actresses.

We read the play, and it was delightfully entertaining as reading matter.

Fredric March, who plays the role of "Tony Cavendish," won his first contract when Hollywood producers saw him in the same role in a stage play at the Morocco theater in Los Angeles.

Ina Claire's reputation as one of the best-dressed women in America doesn't suffer a bit from the clothes she wears in this picture. An original Chanel evening gown, a $25,000 chinchilla coat and another evening gown of gold and lace are two of the many gowns selected for her to wear.

REPORT LISTS IMPROVEMENT

Cleveland Federal Bank Finds Business Taking Turn Upward.

By The Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 3—Employment and business in general has shown a turn for the better in the Fourth Federal Reserve district, the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank finds in its monthly business survey.

The bank reported a one per cent increase in employment in Ohio during December, a month which in the previous five years had always shown a decline of one per cent. The figure was based on information from 760 manufacturing concerns. It predicted "some further" improvement when the January figures are compiled.

Since the bottom of the present cycle was reached in November, business in general, despite numerous exceptions, has shown a slow, but steady upturn in Ohio, eastern Kentucky, western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, the Fourth Reserve area.

The survey found that the steel industry began improvement in January and during the first three weeks of that month recovered more than all of the December loss. Operations the third week of January were 47 per cent of capacity, compared with 25 per cent in the final week of January.

Although manufacturers have been "quite conservative" about increasing schedules, automobile production expanded in December and continued to improve last month.

The report said that contrary to the belief that the public is not buying at department stores, sales for 1930 were only 10 per cent below 1929, and this partly because of lower prices.

The gloomy part of the survey came in agriculture. Ohio farm crop values dropped 30 per cent in 1930 from 1929, about the same average as for the country as a whole.

JACKSON, Miss.—When asked how he was going to pay his taxes this year, Mississippi's governor, Theodore G. Bilbo, replied, "I'm broke, too, and will have to borrow some money somewhere, like everybody else, and pay 'em."

The soviet Russian secret police department admits that 600,000 persons are at work in the convict labor camps of the soviet union, in which 72,000 died from hardships last winter. The air lines of the United States carried 385,910 passengers during 1930, an increase of 133 per cent, over the record of the preceding year. Although this country has been engaged in commercial air transportation but half the time of some European countries, we today lead the world in that regard. However, it's hardly a ground for surprise; it's so typically American.

"We have had no good comic operas of late," remarks Gilbert K. Chesterton, "because the real world has been more comic than any possible opera." Tut, tut, Gilbert! You should not devote all your time to the observing of the senate!

Severino de Giovanni, used to be proud to be referred to as "Buenos Aires' master criminal," but he isn't any more, isn't either proud of the appellation or isn't that city's master criminal. He was shot to death by a firing squad at dawn Sunday. Even the "master criminals" get caught in the meshes of the law and have to answer the penalty for their crimes. Crime is the very worst occupation ever; there isn't any chance to win and every chance to lose.

Parental Love.

In Cuyahoga Falls, early Monday morning, Frank Ridenour died from burns sustained when he made a futile attempt to save two of his children from burning to death. He had picked them up after an explosion caused by gasoline thrown on a blaze, but fell unconscious trying to reach the door of the house. Unable to find them, he ran outside. The children were found lying on the floor with a pet dog.

Mrs. Ridenour, upstairs with two other children, carried them down the stairs and through the flames to safety. It is believed she will recover, though badly burned.

In Toledo on Sunday, Norman Braddock, forty-one years old, risked his life to dive under the ice on the Maumee river in an attempt to rescue his son and a playmate, who had fallen through the ice. He found the body of one of the children and brought it to the surface. It was his child's playmate. Plunging into the icy water again he sought vainly for his own child. Finally, he gave up in despair.

Just two stories out of many, and stories that might seem insignificant in comparison with battles in the senate, speeches of great men and appropriations of millions of dollars. But back of their value as news lies a restatement of one of the world's most potent forces—parental love.

A Comprehensive Redistricting Plan.

The Citizens league of Cleveland has proposed a very comprehensive plan for the redistricting of the state, which includes not only the populations of the old and the proposed new districts, but also an analysis of the votes cast in the existing districts in 1926 and 1930. The plan of the Cleveland league may not get any further than a proposal. It may not appeal to the general assembly or to Governor White. But no matter what the fate of the plan may be, it has all the earmarks of fairness in giving the larger population centers of the state the representations to which they are entitled and yet is fair to the smaller cities and the agricultural counties. Aside from the proposed Eighteenth district, made up of the counties of Carroll, Columbiana, Harrison and Jefferson with an aggregate population of 309,692, the proposed Thirteenth, composed of the counties of Belmont, Guernsey, Mercer, Morgan, Noble and Washington, which have a combined population of 225,612, and the proposed Twenty-Fourth district, which is made of Mahoning county and has a population of 236,112, all the proposed districts are very equitably portioned, their populations ranging from approximately 280,000 to 302,000, the average district population being about 280,000, but three in addition to the three already named being markedly below the average figure. This second set of three districts much under 280,000 are the Third, consisting of the counties of Adams, Brown, Butler, Clermont, Clinton, Highland and Warren with a population of 258,710; the Seventh, made up of the counties of Athens, Gallia, Jackson, Lawrence, Meigs, Pike, Scioto and Vinton, with an aggregate population of 266,151, and the Fourteenth, composed of the counties of Cochocton, Holmes, Medina, Muskingum, Tuscarawas and Wayne, the combined population of which is 257,994.

The plan proposes the dividing of Cuyahoga into four districts—the Twentieth, population, 301,809; the Twenty-First, population, 300,463; the Twenty-Second, population, 302,527, and the Twenty-Third, population, 296,656. This would give Cuyahoga four representatives in the lower house of congress, a gain of two. Hamilton county—Cincinnati—would be represented by the First and Second districts, with 296,533 and 292,823, respectively. The Twelfth district would consist of Toledo, with a population of 290,718, and Columbus, with a population of 290,564, would be the Ninth. Like Mahoning county, Montgomery with 273,481 would have a representative of her own and be known as the Fourth while the Fifteenth district would embrace Stark county and a small slice off the south end of Summit, and have a population of 281,784. The cities of Dayton and Canton, respectively, explain the limited area of the last two districts named.

From this it may be seen that all the districts with populations below the average, save the Twenty-Fourth are what may be called rural, while the districts to which the plan gives big populations are urban, which gives the former greater representation on a population basis than the latter.

Marion county is placed by the plan in the Tenth district with Crawford, Delaware, the north half of Franklin, Knox, Licking, Morrow, Union and Wyandot, the aggregate population of the district being 281,043. Incidentally, the politics of this district, judging by the returns in the last two congressional elections, would be Republican. In 1928, the Republican vote on congressmen was 59,406 against a Democratic vote of 49,246. That, of course, was an exceptional year, as Mr. Hoover carried the state by the unprecedented Ohio plurality of over 760,000. Last year the Republican vote on congressman in the proposed district was 48,759 against a Democratic vote of 46,467. But last year was a Democratic year, the head of the ticket and the Democratic senatorial candidate being overwhelmingly elected. Possibly half way between the Republican plurality of 2,000 last year and 10,000 two years before, would represent the normal Republican tendency were the state to be redistricted according to the Citizens' league plan.

The Hollywood "celebrities" agree that Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights" is fine, but that he alone can afford to ignore the talkies. There's never any telling until some other artist—we mean a real artist and not the customary movie substitute—tries it out.

Another "biggest distilling plant yet" has been seized by dry agents; this one, valued at $1,000,000, in Elmira, New York. It's lucky for the fellows who "can drink it or let it alone"—but seldom do the latter—that the prices the gentlemenly bootleggers charge them for liquor do not keep pace with the mounting values placed on plants seized by the dry law enforcement people

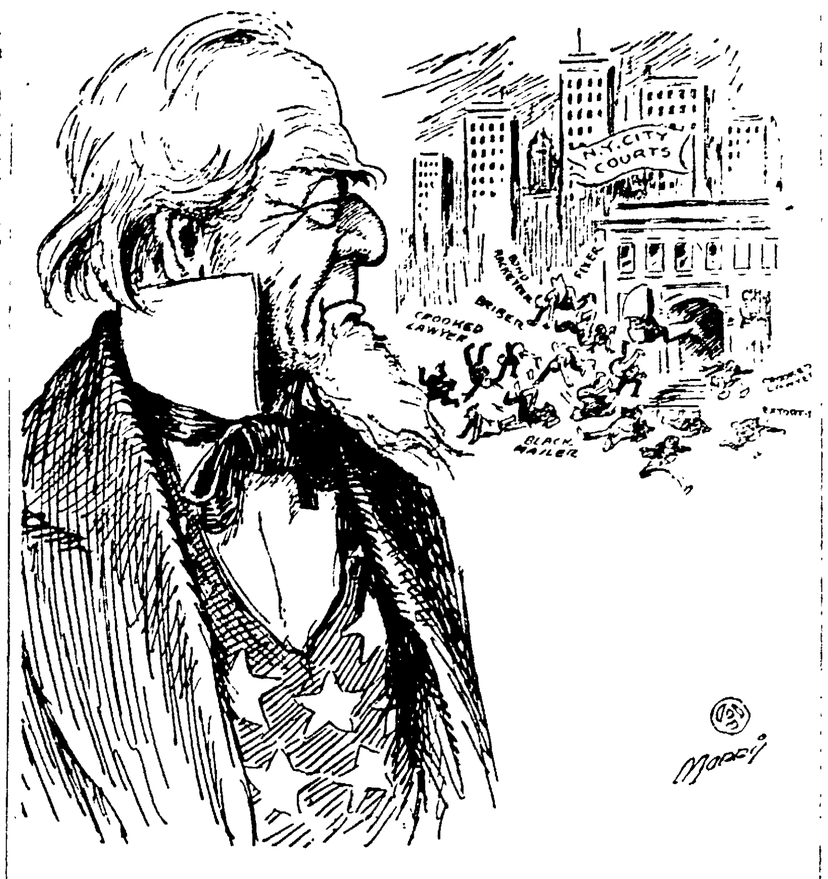
So great is the demand for the Wickersham report that the house has voted to have 28,000 additional copies printed. It's not so surprising. It's human nature to want to know how near the other fellow comes to being correct in his views and estimates

Congressman La Guardia, of New York, want to know why the United States hasn't an entry in the Schneider cup aeroplane race. One reason may be that this country does not care to expend the money necessary to construct a racing plane, which, from the very nature of its construction, could not be used for practical purposes either in time of peace or in time of war.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Snowden told the British house of commons, last week, that Britain would receive from allied debt payments and German reparations a total of $166,750,000 during the 1931-1932 financial year and pay this country $164,320,000. As long as that situation holds good, Britain should be able to "stagger along" under the burden of what she owes us.

It develops that $500,000 is the amount guaranteed by Lady Huston looking to the defense of the Schneider speed trophy. In such an experience as Great Britain is undergoing, it's going to strike some people that half a million dollars could be better expended than blowing it in on a machine to uphold British speed superiority in the air. Yet, come to think of it, we certainly blow in a lot of coin over here defending that old mug won by the America years ago.

WOULD THAT OTHER CITIES WOULD DO LIKEWISE.



Editorial Opinion.

THE VISIT FROM EROS.

As is not unsuitable for a planetoid named after the god of love, tiny Eros has presented the astronomers this last month with several surprises. The visit of this small twenty-mile world to our neighborhood has constituted, as we have explained already in these columns, the nearest approach of any major body of the solar system to the earth for many years and the first such approach to be studied thoroughly by the astronomers. There were no surprises about the planetoid's arrival. It showed up on time, it was about in the expected orbit, its deviations from this orbit which will be used presently to weigh the sun more accurately than ever before seem to have been about of the expected character and magnitude. The mathematical calculations which will provide, it is expected, more accurate values for this weight of the sun, for the distance of the earth from that body and for the whole size scale and weight scale of the solar system will require months.

No telescope is powerful enough to show the actual surface of the tiny world even at its nearest distance of some 16,000,000 miles. But one thing about Eros any astronomer can measure, even through a relatively small telescope. This is the hour-to-hour variation of the planetoid's light. As its last visit such a variation was detected and was ascribed to the rotation of the planetoid, one side being assumed darker than the other so that the reflected sunlight waxed and waned as the small body turned on its axis.

On the present visit, it was been announced by the Harvard observatory, a similar variation was detected as the planetoid first appeared, but has now vanished, so that the body now shines with a nearly uniform light. Several explanations of this unexpected appearance are possible. One, for example, is that the direction of the planetoid's axis also changes slowly, so that one of the poles is now pointed in our direction and makes the rotation ineffective on the reflected light. A more interesting possibility is that the difference between the two sides of the asteroid may be one of shape instead of color. Eros may be a square or angular chunk of material instead of a ball. Such a conclusion would be of extraordinary interest for theories of the origin of the asteroids. It would simply mean that these numerous tiny planets are irregular fragments of some exploded larger body instead of spherical accumulations of gaseous or viscous materials like the solar system's larger worlds.—New York Herald Tribune.

MRS. HENDERSON'S OFFER.

For the second time Mrs. John B. Henderson has offered to the government, "free of encumbrance of any kind," a magnificent dwelling to be used as the home of the vice president of the United States. It was while Mr. Coolidge was vice president that Mrs. Henderson made her first offer, but at that time no attempt was made, as there will be now, to have congress appropriate funds for furnishing and maintaining it. The cost of the new mansion has been estimated at $3,000,000, and if this generous gift is accepted congress will be asked to appropriate $30,000 to furnish it and $25,000 annually for maintenance.

Mrs. Henderson has made many large gifts to the government, notable among them being Meridian park, which overlooks the city, but probably none of them is more generous than her offer to supply the vice president with a mansion befitting the dignity of the office. The desire to have a permanent home for vice presidents of the United States is evidently cherished by Mrs. Henderson, else she would not have repeated her offer. It would appear that the government will be doing itself a favor by accepting her gift.—Washington Star.

Food Training of the Child.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There often arises the problem of how to get children to eat certain foods. The grown-ups are familiar with the advantages and benefits of certain foods, but frequently Tommy may not agree with us.

It is definitely believed by some students of the subject that any dislike a child may have for certain foods is due entirely to neglect in training. This is unfortunate, if true, for often children grow up disliking foods which are absolutely essential for their health.

In many instances the cause for this dislike may be attributed to the parent. The child overhears the adult's complaint and the expression of his dislike of certain foods, such as spinach, carrots or milk. Children are quick to imitate, and, if the taste of a particular food is not pleasing, they will immediately reject that food. They found their objection on the conversation of their elders. If you dislike some foods, never voice your opinion in the presence of young children.

Children should never be scolded for not eating certain foods. Nor should they be forced to eat foods they do not desire. Forced feedings never develop a desire or taste for food, and certainly do not promote proper digestion.

At the same time you should continue serving these foods. Never remove them from the child's list. If nothing is said, it is probable he will eat them in time.

It takes tact and thought to overcome these dislikes. One wise mother told me the other day she makes sandwiches, filling them with a mixture of the disliked vegetable mashed up with a larger quantity of a popular vegetable. When the child finally discovers the fact, he has found out that the despised food is really not bad, but, on the contrary, is actually good.

Occasionally I see a dyspeptic old gentleman, who, organically, is well, and possesses no real stomach disorder, yet he won't eat this or that, thinking it is bad for him. Usually he is merely suffering from poor food training in childhood. I pity him.

If the foods served the children differ from those the rest of the family have, it is better to have the children eat before the adults, and preferably in a separate room. There should be only the most pleasant of conversation at any table. There never should be any playing or undue excitement at this time or immediately following the meal.

World's Greatest Mystery.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

Of all the problems and mysteries which obsess the mind of man, the deepest and most intriguing is that of life. Every one has some notion, clear or vague as the case may be, of life—what it is and what are its main characteristics. Yet few stop to clarify their thoughts on the subject, and to set down in specific terms the differentiating qualities of life. This is one of the initial attempts lucidly set forth in the impressive new work, "The Science of Life."

It should be noted, first of all, that life connotes movement. Living things move about. They may move or stir with great speed or with extreme slowness. They may long remain quiescent, apparently dormant. Yet sooner or later they will move in response to some mysterious, inner urge or impulse. This quality it is which distinguishes animate from inanimate things. And yet Einstein, Rutherford and Bohr have accustomed us to the notion that everything moves. Nothing is at rest, nothing is static. Inanimate objects, however, are usually driven by outside impulses, forces, pressures, currents. With inanimate objects, however, the driving-force is within. Life is an automotive force, with a dynamo the secret of whose mechanism has not been as yet fully understood.

In the second place, life is not only self-moving it is self-feeding. It consumes—assorbs into itself—matter from without. The matter thus taken up is subject to chemical changes, and as a result of these transformations energy for movement is acquired. This is the meaning of the term which ordinarily drives us to the dictionary—metabolism. Many inanimate objects grow, enlarge, take on greater volume and mass in the course of time. But this growth takes place by accretion, the adding on of external particles or atoms, without alteration of chemical nature or release of energy. Metabolism and spontaneous movement are cited as the primary characteristics of living things.

There is another characteristic associated with life which must not be overlooked. So far as science has been able to determine, life arises always and only from preceding life. The notion of "spontaneous generation" is now satisfactorily exploded. The fundamental doctrine of biology may be stated in a Latin phrase, omne vivum ex vivo.

This has been succinctly stated in "The Science of Life." Life presents itself as a multitude of individuals, which have been produced by division or the detachment of parts from other individuals and most of which will in their time give rise to another generation. This existence in the form of distinct individuals which directly or indirectly reproduce their kind by a sort of inherent necessity is a third distinction between living and non-living things.

Waves in water or wind-ripples in sand may be said to reproduce themselves, but not by a detachment and growth of their own substance; drops of oil or water grow and break up under suitable conditions, but not through any innate disposition to do so. Living things display an impulse to reproduce themselves even in adverse circumstances.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Gorge at Clifton.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

There is a tradition around Clifton, a romantic place not far from Yellow Springs, Ohio, that is interesting on account of its ingenius connection with our early history and because of the thrill of Indian adventure. It has to do with a noted gorge at that place to which, because of this story, the name of "Darnell's Leap" has been given.

During the revolution when the supremacy of the Indian to all that country was yet unchallenged, the Indians were making frequent forays upon the settlements south of the Ohio in Kentucky. In 1778 such a movement resulted in the capture of Daniel Boone and twenty seven other white people in Kentucky, and the entire party was brought to Old Chillicothe, which was in that vicinity—not the present city of Chillicothe at all.

A little later Boone, with ten others, were taken at the instance of General Hamilton, in command of the British forces at Detroit, to that city. While the other seventeen were being held at Chillicothe, one of them, a young man named Darnell, managed to slip away and hid, awaiting a chance to make his way back to Kentucky after the Indians had ceased their intense search for him.

In spite of his secrecy, however, the Indians got a trace of him and came to his hiding place. He determined to escape them or die in the attempt. Being a good runner, he dashed off through the woods, turning once when the fleetest Indian got too near him, to shoot him down, and then throwing his gun away rushed toward this gorge with all speed. He had inspected the place before, and believed he could clear the gorge from precipice to precipice at a bound, and, determined to try, this to put an insuperable obstacle in the way of his pursuers. He landed on the other side near the brink, fell backward toward the chasm, but held on to bushes and pulled himself back to safety and was soon lost in the woods. The Indians were stunned by the feat and abandoned their chase there, and Darnell finally reached home safe.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, Feb. 3—Greenwich village is almost completely shorn of its Bohemianism these days. What there is left is faked for the tourist. Ornate new apartment houses with their uptown prices have forced out the shiftless and romantic dreamers.

The smocked and sandaled veterans have settled in the various "artistic colonies" springing up in suburbs. Village "types" today are mostly commercial conscious schemers with press agents. They have an eye for "a week at the Palace" instead of the deathless canvas.

In its haloed past every tumble-down brick and frame building hived its quota of unconventionals who mocked the marriage vow. Ladies in Grecian robes and bandeaux sat cross legged on the floor in the candlelight ballyhooing a new ism. Pseudo intellectuals with long hair led lost causes.

Life was dangerously experimental. Every attic was an open house to which drifted the gleaners, hoping for a free round of gin and and then an all-night party would end in tragedy as when the gifted Hans Stengel of his guests suddenly to hang himself in a closet one dawn.

It is remarkable that many came out of the "Village" unscathed. A few talented, of course, were seared by its slothful mark, but it is surprising how many were able in time to see the utter futility of such an easy mode of life and break away.

Novelists of distinction had their brief fame in the shadows of Washington arch—Sinclair Lewis, Theodore Dreiser, Hendrik Van Loon, Willard Huntington Wright, Harris Merton Lyon and O. Henry. Also such artists as Robert Henri, Bob Chanler, Rose O'Neil and others.

Perhaps there are a half dozen blocks where the ancient "Village" peeps through but generally speaking when the go-getters moved in the dreamer moved out. The little theater, the Cubistic cellar and Futuristic garret are, too, a fading memory.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Feb. 3—There was something highly interesting—even a bit dramatic—in the appearance of Frank B. Kellogg on the floor of the senate the other day.

Word went out immediately that he was there to sound out his former colleagues on the question of America's adherence to the World court. These reports annoyed him somewhat. He regarded it as a trifle absurd that he was believed to be there for such a purpose.

He had the freedom of the senate chamber because once he sat there, a senator from Minnesota.

It was but natural, however, that his visit would be so construed. A justice on the World court, he appeared at a time when the World court is again before the senate. The appearance hardly could go unnoticed.

• • •

But the dramatic thing about Kellogg's visit was the visit itself.

It was only four years ago, almost to the day, that this white-haired, stoop-shouldered man was pictured in the senate in a far different aspect than he is known today.

In January, 1927, he was secretary of state and the Mexican-Nicaraguan situation was causing much concern in the senate. Marines were in Nicaragua, and senators were attacking vigorously the policy that permitted their presence there.

Kellogg was assailed on all sides. Attempts were made to force his appearance before congressional committees, to explain personally various steps his department had taken.

On the floor of the senate he was accused of "intriguing" with government officials in Nicaragua. He heard his memoranda on the situation described by a senator as the "flimsiest sort of propaganda."

• • •

That was in January, 1927.

In January, 1931, Kellogg visited the senate for the first time since he left that body. He came at the age of seventy-four, just embarking upon a new career as:

A member of the World court of international justice.

Author of what is considered by many one of the grandest gestures for peace in world history.

Winner of the coveted Nobel peace prize.

His annoyance at suggestions that he was using his privileges of the senate floor to further the cause of the World court was doubtless prompted by his own knowledge of lobbying.

He sat as a United States senator long enough to know that probably the most effective lobbying is carried on neither in the senate chamber nor in the lobby or cloakrooms, but in the private offices of the senators themselves.

Dinner Stories.

"You go into a tobacconist's shop," bawled the anti-tobacco crank, "you place a dime on the counter, you get a packet of cigarets—and you get more! For in the wake of those cigarets comes beer, wine, whisky, brandy and——"

"Lumme!" interrupted one of his audience, "who's your tobacconist, guv'nor?"

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, Feb. 4

ALTHOUGH the planetary conditions for this day bespeak some lively and enterprising activities, with a degree of progress and profit, yet there are signs indicating fraud, duplicity and misrepresentation, which must be sagaciously dealt with. All writings should be negotiated with precaution and new projects should be launched with well fortified plans and safeguards.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of rather mixed conditions. While affairs may be lively and there may be an urge to initiative and new undertakings, attended by a modicum of success and encouragement, yet there are perils through deception, fraud and betrayal, especially through writings. With precaution and wise judgment prosperity may be achieved. A child born on this day may be ambitious, resourceful and enterprising yet it may incline to ways of shrewdness and strategem to attain its ends.

TO HEAR REPORT

Reports of engineers on the proposed improvement of the McDonald creek ditch improvement which extends from Bowling Green township into Hardin county will be heard by commissioners of both Hardin and Marion counties at the courthouse here on Thursday, March 5, at 10 a. m. The improvement is petitioned for by Ed Black and others.

Make system alkaline to ... Stop Colds QUICK!

Get Rid of Colds Before They Weaken You, Make You Liable to More Serious Troubles.

Nowadays it's important to stop your cold quick before it weakens your resistance to more serious trouble.

Any of the older treatments will bring relief—after a time. But thousands say this new way is the quickest of any.

Begin when you feel a cold coming. Take a tablespoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water, morning, noon, and night, the first day. Do same the second day. Then only at night. Colds reduce the alkaline balance of your system. That makes you feel achy, feverish, weak. Phillips Milk of Magnesia relieves this, and restores the alkaline balance.

Doctors prescribe Phillips Milk of Magnesia; hospitals use it. Millions know how it relieves sour stomachs, gas, indigestion, constipation and other symptoms of too much acid. Get the genuine.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Dandruff

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

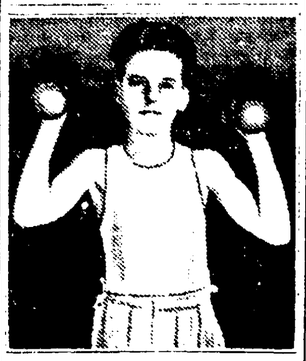
It doesn't do much good to try to comb or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely.

To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you may have. This simple remedy never fails.



Ohio Boy is Strongest

"MY son, Lawrence, suffered with his stomach and bowels until he was quite listless and weak," says Mrs. L. H. Fieth, 1418 East 88th St., Cleveland.

"Now it's a different story as you can see from his picture. He's strong and full of life. I give California Fig Syrup a lot of credit for his condition. It increased his appetite, helped him wonderfully. Since then I have used California Fig Syrup myself with benefit as a laxative."

To show how California Fig Syrup acts to build up and strengthen half-sick, headachy, constipated children through giving tone and strength to weak stomach and bowels, nothing could be more convincing than praise like this.

Your doctor will approve the use of this pure vegetable product—as often as an impure breath, coated tongue, listlessness, feverishness or lack of appetite warn of constipation—or to keep bowels from clogging during colds or children's diseases.

When buying, look for the word California on carton and bottle. That marks the genuine.

CHAPTER 6

What the Letters Said

HERE, Superintendent Richmond considered, was a case where it might, in the absence of eye-witnesses, prove difficult to bring the guilt home to any individual. It might be possible to show that certain persons could have committed the crime, but the wider the possibility the less the certainty.

The letters, Evelyn said, were in Duckworth's possession. Shortly after she left at Richmond's request to summon him, Duckworth came in, looking tired and haggard, and delivered the envelopes, arranged in the order received.

Superintendent Richmond and Jimmie scrutinized the letters closely. They were rudely scrawled in printed characters on cheap note paper. The first was the longest and bore a postmark nearly five months old

You are a bad wicked old woman. You go to church, but what do you pray for. You ought to be punished. Wait till I get the chance.

The second was more definite:

I am waiting my chance. It won't be long. You are for death sudden and quick.

Aside from smudgier writing, the third was similar:

Are you ready to die? The end is near. You made others sufer and you shall pay. You beast.

The next merely said:

Psalms 69.28. This means you.

"What's the reference?" questioned Jimmie. Old Annabelle Querdling had penciled it on the back:

Let them be blotted out of the book of the living and not be written wth the righteous.

Constable Roscoe said that he suspected Joe Allen, the gardener dismissed for making love to one of the maids, as the writer of the notes, because Joe had once been in the choir. "He swore he wasn't," admitted the constable.

"I could have done it last week, wicked woman. I won't wait much longer.

That was the next letter, and the others continued in the same vein. Richmond said treating the finger prints of the letters had been useless, since many persons had handled them. At this point Duckworth suggested possibly the letters had not all been written by the same person.

"Doesn't help us much," muttered Richmond. "When writing is disguised there are often differences. Then he turned to Duckworth and asked him for particulars about himself.

"She did not altogether like it," was Duckworth's frank reply to the superintendent's question concerning Miss Querdling's view of her niece's engagement to him, "but I think she was getting more used to the idea."

He said that on the night of the tragedy he had been in the room with Evelyn singing, remaining there until Marjorie had come to tell of her aunt's death.

"You didn't see any one in the garden at any time?" the superintendent asked.

"Well, as a matter of fact, I went to pull the curtains—he pointed to the windows—"and I noticed a woman hurrying across the pathway you can just see. While I can't describe her, she was of moderate height and wore a long dark coat or mackintosh. I couldn't see her face, as she was going the other way. Of course, I didn't take particular notice."

"It was still quite light?" the superintendent asked, and noting Duckworth's nod, continued, "then why did you pull the curtain?"

"Well," Duckworth smiled, "I was here with Miss Blake and we did not particularly want to be opposite those windows. Besides it was hardly light enough for her to see the music."

No one suggested who the woman might have been, and interest turned at once to Major Gresham, announced by the maid, who said that he called at the suggestion of the sisters.

The major, short, slightly bow-legged, florid and frowning, entered pompously. "Morning, Richmond," he began, "Have you got the rights of it?"

"I understand that you were in the garden last night. I should like to know what you can tell me about it, when you came and what you were doing?" Richmond asked.

The major's wrath flamed up at what he took to be the insinuations in the question. "What can I tell you!" he exclaimed indignantly, and then, after Richmond explained his purpose of clearing up the mystery, he said, "Of course, I'll help you. That's what I came for. What can I do for you?"

But his answers to Richmond's questions were not in keeping with this quieter mood. He blustered and protested that the questions were impertinent. As to the time he left his home to go across the links to the Querdling estate through the gate from the links—

"Call it 8:45, but what's the good of asking silly questions like that?"

"When you went through the gardens to the lawn," persisted Richmond, did you see anyone about?"

"Blight it, no!—I'd have said so."

"It might take you 20 to 25 minutes to get from your house across the links to this garden. That would make it ten past nine on your arrival. Now, what did you do when you got here?"

"Nothing—I came to see Miss Querdling and her nieces met me and said there had been an accident."

"That was later." Richmond's glance was hard. "You arrived at 10 or 15 minutes after nine. You say you called to see Miss Querdling. If you did not go to her directly you arrived—what were you doing from the time you arrived until you were seen by Marjorie in the garden at about 9:30."

"What do you mean?"

"Just what I say. On your own showing, you arrived in the garden at ten minutes past nine and you were there until half past—when Miss Querdling was discovered dead."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TUESDAY. A wind came off the lake last night and froze the top of what snow was left so that it was all rubbly and mean to fall on. I let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth and when his bussel landed on the ice in the hollow in the snow which he had made by landing in it, it broke through and he got a seat in some ice water. He yelped and looked at me as much as to say that it was all my fault. I asted him if he thought I ought to put a rubber diaper on him before I let him down, and he snuck under the house to go out on the other side to meet me when I went to the barn. A dog isn't so very bright. But I would ruther have one dog than two cows. A fella has to milk cows.

When I had went in the house to strain the milk and feed my face my grandfather had got all his fishing tackle out and was playing with it, and my mother had to call him twice before he would pay her any mind and come to breakfast, and then a fish hook was caught in the bottom of his pants leg and he pulled the tackle box off of the chair where he had put it and scattered hooks all over the floor and under the bass burner. I picked up all the hooks I could find, but he was grumbling all through breakfast, and after breakfast he got down on the floor to make sure I had got them all so that Annabelle Lee wouldn't get any of them, and he was looking around the bass burner on his hands and one knee, because he has a flat wheel and can't bend the other one, and my ant was carrying some dishes out to the kitchen and stumbled over his foot and bumped into his bussel so hard that the top of his head went against the bass burner. I sure was wishing the bunch was in there in hear what he said. My ant grinned and said she didn't go to do it, but she never carries the dishes out so it looked mighty funny to me.

I told my grandfather out in the kitchen that if I had some chink for Valentine day I would send her a valentine. He didn't dig up any. He said he wished she would marry some enemy of his and move away from our house. Feeble went home without her rubber boot yesterday, but she found it on her front porch this morning. She said she has got a good mind to marry the Lost Bag of Tripe when we all grow up. I bet someone will marry the mut, but I hope it won't be her. Maybe I will marry her and Younias too. Feeble has got an air rifle and I have always wished I had one.

We had canned spinnach for supper and my mother made me eat a lot of it. She said it would make me tough. My ant said if I got any tougher than I am I'd be arrested. My mother said it made people beautiful too. So my ant took a lot of it. But I watched her and my mother was mistooken.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

What Secrets Can the "Fortune Box" Hold?

I WAS so surprised at Lillian's quiet statement that she could answer, in part, Dicky's question as to the connection between Marion's lock-box and a Chinese plot, that I stared at her with unforgivable gauche rudeness. But I was not alone in my stare. Her husband's eyes, Dicky and my father's were all fixed upon her and for a long second or two no one spoke. Then her husband said tersely:

"How come?"

"Mind you, I don't know that there is any connection between them," she said, and I noticed that she was hesitant of speech, while her face held a curious embarrassed flush. "I only know this. Years ago, during a rebellion in China, Sam Brixton and—and Tom Morton—" she uttered the name of Marion's dead father as if she found difficulty in getting it out, and I saw Harry Underwood's big hand clench upon the chair arm so fiercely that I feared for the wood. —"were in partnership, in several enterprises, none of which, I think, would have borne close scrutiny. They never confided in me—they dared not—she amended proudly, "but I gleaned enough to guess that some of the treasures looted at that time passed through their hands—Brixton. Indeed, was in China during the worst of it. What bearing those facts may have on the present mystery I do not know, but I thought I ought to tell you all I knew concerning the matter."

"It, at least, brings Chinese treasures into close connection with Marion's father, who, apparently, confided the things now in the box to his old mother for the child. I wish it were not so. Dynamite would be almost as safe a possession."

Lillian's Strange Outburst

My father's voice was authoritative, and my heart traveled toward my shoes.

"Then," Dicky said slowly, "why not open the box, find out what is really in it, and if there is anything our Chinese friends want, hand it over to 'em."

"No, no!" Lillian and I protested, with one voice, and our husbands turned to us in amazement. But my father looked at us with a smile that told us he understood our viewpoint, whether or not he sympathized with it.

"There are dead hands clutching that box," Lillian said in low tones, her face white. "Marion's father left that box in trust for her, his mother kept the trust and passed it on to the child. The fact that I loathed the one I cannot gloss over that fact, and had no reason to love the other, does not give me any excuse for allowing that compact to be violated—rather compels me to keep it inviolate. I—I should feel as if they would reach out from their graves in protest—and punishment, if I failed them."

This from Lillian, whose sanity and clearness of vision always have seemed impregnable to me. I had thought that her objections to Dicky's plan were the same as my own, springing from the feeling that the box was Marion's property, and no one else, from whatever motives, had the right to open it. But this rodomontade of nonsense! I stared at her, wide-eyed, until I saw her husband shake his head ever so slightly at me, and I turned my eyes toward my father, who was answering Dicky quietly, and tactfully ignoring Lillian's outburst.

"One objection to that course is that we have no assurance the Chinese have any more right to the contents of the box than have the mysterious bandits headed by the man, Hallam——"

"Whom, if you scratch them, I'll bet you'll find to be blood brothers of one Samuel Brixton, Esquire," Dicky said, and Lillian shuddered.

"I agree with you," my father said, "and it is deplorable that Marion is in such close intimacy with Samuel Brixton's daughter. If our surmises are correct as to his connection with this thing, I fear that the child inadvertently has furnished him with valuable information concerning the box and its whereabouts."

Quick Resentment

"What do you mean?" Lillian demanded hoarsely, and I put my hand tightly over hers.

"I did not tell you before, dearest," I said, softly, "but Marion told Carolyn of the existence of the box and its secret compartment. She had no more secrets. Marion will never see Carolyn again with my consent."

I knew that the only reason for his angry dictum was his concern for Lillian, and his wrath that her daughter had kept a secret from her which she had revealed to a school chum. But Lillian heard only the harshness of tone directed toward the child she idolized, and she flared into quick resentment.

"Harry! You can't mean that! You shan't say it! You have no right!"

WHEN MONEY'S SCARCE

GRIN AND BUDGET

And when money's plentiful, do the same. For a house without a budget is like a ship without a compass or a horse without reins. It runs away with itself.

So budget with the help of your neighborhood A&P where you can be sure of getting real co-operation in the shape of good food at consistently low prices. For A&P stores transact business on such a large scale that they can afford to sell at a little more than cost.

Furthermore, they don't let you get into debt as far as they're concerned, for they sell only for cash—another reason their prices are always so moderate.

So keep your house in order by planning efficiently and spending a little time and money at the nearest A&P. That's the way to make both ends meet when money's scarce. And it's the intelligent way to run a household even when money is plentiful.
